CAMBRIA GRADUATES SIXTH CLASS OF ENGLISH LEARNERS

Quartz Surface Manufacturer Dedicated to Continuing Education for Non-English-Speaking Students

Le Sueur, MN - July 1, 2024 - Cambria, the leading producer of American-made quartz surfaces, celebrated the graduation of nine students from its internally sponsored English program in a ceremony at its Slab Manufacturing Facility in Le Sueur, Minn. The program was created for Cambria employees whose first language is not English, allowing them to learn by attending classes two times a week during their regular workday. Employees receive their regular pay during attendance. The graduation is celebrated annually as a way to recognize students' achievements and to share Cambria's dedication to breaking down barriers to learning, providing resources, and fostering a learning environment that benefits all individuals.

“We are committed to helping our workforce achieve their goals and grow as the company grows,” said Brian Scoggin, Chief Manufacturing Operations Officer at Cambria. “We are happy to celebrate the courage and hard work that go into learning a second language. This program was designed to serve as a conduit to their personal and professional success, and with today’s graduates, we are achieving that together.”

Since its inception in 2015, 58 graduates have successfully completed the course. The 2024 class included eight Spanish-speaking students and one French-speaking student. The ceremony recognized employee students from across the organization who dedicated their time to learning English as a second language. “We take pride in our diverse employee population and recognize the importance of supporting and enhancing the English learning experience for non-native speakers,” said Bridget Prehn, Cambria’s ESL Program Leader. “Through this program, we build employee morale and confidence, creating opportunities for personal and professional success.” Students in the program are from all Cambria locations across North America.
